Join us in shaping how environmental sustainability is measured, managed, and driven across a global organization. In this role, you'll combine data, analytics, and sustainability expertise to support smarter decision-making and ensure we meet evolving regulatory and environmental commitments. Working closely with cross-functional teams, you'll play a key role in strengthening data quality, enabling transparent reporting, and helping Novartis deliver meaningful impact for patients, society, and the planet.

About the Role

Key Responsibilities

- Drive environmental performance reporting through strong collaboration across internal and external stakeholders
- Implement and maintain processes ensuring timely reporting of environmental key performance indicators across sites
- Ensure readiness for emerging regulations including Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive and Green Taxonomy
- Support senior leadership with data-driven insights to guide environmental sustainability decisions
- Drive execution and delivery of sustainability targets across climate, waste, and water
- Support assurance of sustainability indicators in line with ISAE 3000 and applicable standards
- Support product carbon footprint assessments as needed in line with evolving guidelines
- Improve data accuracy, quality, and controls to meet evolving regulatory requirements
- Prepare monthly environmental performance reports for senior leadership
- Support training and communication initiatives to build sustainability capabilities across teams

Essential Requirements

- Master of Business Administration with degree in engineering, technology, or related technical or scientific field
- Around 5 to 6 years of relevant experience in environmental sustainability preferably with leading consulting organizations
- Strong experience in data analytics, performance reporting, and working with cross-functional stakeholders
- Hands-on experience reporting environmental sustainability performance aligned with Greenhouse Gas Protocol and similar standards
- Advanced skills in Microsoft Excel and PowerPoint
- Fluent in English, both written and spoken
- Strong communication skills with proactive and self-driven working style
- Ability to work effectively in a global matrix organization

Desirable Requirements

- Experience driving execution of environmental sustainability strategy and targets within multinational organizations

Commitment to Diversity and Inclusion
