About the Role

Key responsibilities

- Develop and coordinate the integrated access and pricing strategy for the specific TA across launch and lifecycle, aligning value proposition, positioning, and access ambition.
- Provide access input into pipeline and Target Product Profiles within the specific TA guiding indication sequencing, affordability considerations, and early access hypotheses.
- Define pricing, contracting, and negotiation strategies to achieve optimal reimbursement and sustainable access outcomes for the products within the TA.
- Lead cross-functional TA coordination of access strategy execution, partnering closely with Commercial, Medical, HEOR/HTA, Regulatory, Policy, and Field teams.
- Drive early access preparation activities for the products within the TA consolidating cross-functional inputs up to 36 months pre-launch to enable informed decision making.
- Shape healthcare system readiness and access landscape strategies and alternative funding approaches where relevant within the specific TA.
- Gather and integrate market, payer, and field insights into ongoing strategy refinement and portfolio decisions within the TA
- Lead, develop, and inspire high-performing teams, role-modeling Novartis Leadership Expectations and an enterprise mindset.

Essential Requirements

- University degree in life sciences, health economics, public health, business, or related field; advanced degree preferred; fluent English and Spanish are required.
- Previous solid experience in market access, pricing, or related disciplines.
- Previous leadership experience and previous experience within the relevant Therapeutic Area are required.
- Experience engaging with payers, HTA bodies, health authorities, and/or external decision-makers.
- Proven experience in market access, pricing, or related disciplines, including experience in access strategy and/or innovative access solutions.
- Strong cross-functional leadership skills with ability to lead complex initiatives in matrix environments.
- Demonstrated experience across both field-based roles (e.g., commercial or market access roles) and office-based roles, with a strong understanding of how to integrate field insights into strategic decision-making.
- Strong analytical, strategic, and scenario-planning capabilities to support access decision making.
- Excellent negotiation, stakeholder management, and value story communication skills.
- Learning agility, resilience, and ability to operate effectively under ambiguity and changing external conditions.
