Imagine helping shape the future of medicine at the point where breakthrough science meets legal strategy. As R&D Legal Counsel EMEA, you will partner closely with researchers, development teams, and business leaders to provide practical legal guidance that enables innovation while managing risk. This is an exciting opportunity to influence cutting-edge research, support the development of transformative therapies, and contribute to bringing new medicines to patients worldwide.

About the Role

Key Responsibilities

- Provide legal counsel supporting research and development activities across the United Kingdom and EMEA region.
- Advise on clinical trials, regulatory requirements, data use, and patient-focused research initiatives.
- Draft, negotiate, and manage research, development, and collaboration agreements.
- Partner with scientists and business leaders to enable innovation while effectively managing legal risk.
- Support external innovation and asset integration activities across the development portfolio.
- Drive compliant adoption of emerging technologies, including artificial intelligence-enabled solutions.
- Contribute to legal process improvement initiatives that enhance efficiency, scalability, and business impact.

Essential Requirements

- UK qualified lawyer with relevant post-qualification legal experience in a commercial or life sciences environment.
- Strong knowledge of research and development legal matters, including contracting and regulatory considerations.
- Experience drafting, negotiating, and managing commercial and research-related agreements.
- Ability to provide pragmatic, risk-based legal advice in a fast-paced, matrix organization paired with strong communication skills and the ability to influence decisions as well as simplify complex legal concepts.
- Comfortable working with artificial intelligence tools, including designing and deploying agents to drive productivity and innovation.
- Proficiency in English (written and spoken), other languages are a plus
