Great laboratories rely on more than advanced equipment. They rely on people who make quality, compliance, and continuous improvement part of every process. As a Quality Control Specialist, you'll help strengthen laboratory operations by supporting equipment, documentation, analytical processes, and digital systems within a regulated environment. You'll collaborate across functions, use tools such as SAP S/4HANA, and identify opportunities to make laboratory processes more efficient and reliable, helping ensure quality is built into the way we work every day.

About the Role

Obligatory Requirements:

- Support the introduction and continuous improvement of laboratory processes, analytical techniques, and equipment.
- Prepare, review, and maintain laboratory procedures and equipment-related documentation.
- Ensure laboratory activities comply with Good Manufacturing Practice requirements and internal quality standards.
- Use digital systems to strengthen documentation, reporting, tracking, and process efficiency.
- Support equipment and asset management activities using SAP S/4HANA and other relevant systems.
- Identify deviations and contribute to investigations, root-cause analysis, and effective corrective actions.
- Collaborate with cross-functional teams to ensure reliable, compliant, and efficient laboratory operations.
- Identify improvement opportunities that strengthen equipment performance, quality compliance, and operational effectiveness.

Essential Requirements:

- University degree in Pharmacy, Chemistry, Engineering, Mechatronics, Natural Sciences, or another relevant discipline.
- At least two years of relevant experience in a regulated laboratory, quality, production, or development environment.
- Strong understanding of Good Manufacturing Practice requirements and quality standards.
- Strong digital literacy with confidence using information technology systems, databases, and business applications.
- Ability to work independently while collaborating effectively across cross-functional teams.
- Proficiency in English, with strong communication, organizational, and coordination skills.
