Are you passionate about turning complex data into trusted insights that drive confident decisions? As Data Management & Infrastructure Manager at Novartis, you will sit at the heart of our data ecosystem, shaping how business-critical information is defined, governed, and trusted across the organization. By building a reliable, federated view of key data sets, you will enable high-impact analytics, strengthen confidence in key performance indicators, and accelerate decision-making for commercial, medical, and analytics teams. This role offers a unique opportunity to influence data foundations, collaborate with diverse global stakeholders, and make a tangible impact on how insights support better outcomes.

About the Role

Key Responsibilities

- Own and maintain a single trusted view of business-critical data across internal and external sources
- Define local data processing rules, quality controls, and stewardship standards to improve reliability and trust
- Partner with digital and information technology teams to deploy robust pipelines and resolve data incidents quickly
- Align local practices with global data governance, privacy, and compliance requirements in regulated environments
- Enable cross-functional reporting for commercial, medical, and value teams through reliable, well-documented datasets
- Embed security, observability, and reliability practices using a DevOps mindset to strengthen availability and performance
- Prioritize critical datasets for business continuity and accelerate onboarding of new data sources

Requirements

- Bachelor's degree in business, engineering, data and analytics, digital, information technology, or a related field
- Proven experience in data management, analytics engineering, or data governance within regulated environments
- Strong knowledge of data quality management, governance frameworks, and compliance requirements
- Experience working with data privacy standards and separation of medical and commercial data
- Ability to translate business needs into clear data rules and quality controls
- Strong stakeholder management skills, partnering effectively with digital, analytics, and cross-functional teams

Desirable Requirements

- Experience working with cloud-based data platforms and modern data infrastructure environments
